

Semicolons

Unlike many other languages, Swift doesn't require you to write a semicolon (;) after each statement in your code, although you can do so if you wish. However, semicolons are required if you want to write multiple separate statements on a single line:

```
1 let cat = "🐱"; print(cat)
2 // Prints "🐱"
```